1. The renovation and extension of Polish shipyards is one of the largest items in the Polish Six Year Plan now in progress.
2. The Gdansk (Danzig) Shipyard plans to build 50,000 tons of new shipping this year and probably will fulfill the plan for the first time. This includes trawlers built both for the Soviet Union and Poland.
3. The Szczecin (Stettin) shipyards will probably not be completed until the end of the Six Year Plan. Two shipyards are affected. The first is the former Vulkan shipyard, which is partly in operation and building ships, and the other will be on the Wyspa Okretowa in the Gryf shipyard where preparations are already under way.
4. At the end of the Six Year Plan, Polish shipyards should be capable of building a total of 150,000 tons of new shipping yearly. This will probably not be realized since all investment plans are delayed, some for more than one year.
